Thanksgiving Ball.

The twenty-third annual Thanksgiving ball will be given under the auspices of Penesseewassee Lodge, No. 18, K. of P., in Norway Opera House, Thursday evening, Nov. 29. Music by Stearns' orchestra, eight pieces. Hall director, Young Fatt, aids, W. A. Lewis, Abner Mann, honorary aids, Walter Holden, Oxford, H. G. Fletcher, South Paris; Scott Saunders, Mechanic Falls. Ice cream and cake will be served at intermission. All gallery seats reserved. The ball will be for the benefit of Sir Knight Horace Pike. The Thanksgiving ball for these twenty-two years has always been an enjoyable event, in fact it is said by those who have been regular attendants to improve year by year, and under the same experienced management we have no doubt the twenty-third will still continue better even than the preceding one.

It goes without saying that the assembly of the Eagles, at their hall was a most enjoyable affair. Just about enough were present to have a good time.

Mrs. Lena F. Gray of Livermore Falls, formerly Lena Packard of this place, who is at the Central Maine General hospital at Lewiston for treatment of appendicitis, is doing well.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Heath and son recently made a trip in their automobile to Gilead and Gorham, N. H. On account of the snow storm they were obliged to leave the auto and return home by rail.

Mrs. A. R. Carter and daughter, Mrs. A. H. Dutton of Salt Lake City, Utah, are expected at Mrs. E. J. Bickford's. Mrs. Dutton was formerly Ethel Carter of this place and has many friends in this vicinity. They will make an extended visit here.

We called on Mrs. W. W. Trombly and found her recovering finely from her severe sickness of last summer. She has taken up her dressmaking again and while she is not as strong as before her sickness, she feels better to be doing something, and her lameness prevents her working at housework.

Monday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock the town clock stopped on account of the snow which had frozen on the face not allowing the hands to move. This is the second time this has happened it being some five or six years since it occurred before. Otto Schauer who has charge of the clock soon removed the snow and all was well.

NUMBER 46.

These Two Things Needed.

Norway is in need of at least two things, more track room at the station and more money. The interest shown in the school work; the fact that the school has been played on the approved list of college preparatory schools, which entitles the scholars to admission into Bowdoin, U. of M. and many other colleges without taking entrance examinations, and the increase in attendance, especially the increased number of out of town scholars. The number of non-resident scholars would be increased greatly if a gymnasium was annexed to the school. Music and drawing have been added recently to the graded school studies. This is a good thing and shows what can be done.

A Waterford teamster, who is loading lumber on the cars here, when asked if he had any trouble about getting at his car replied: "Well, I should say I did. One day I will find the car at one place, the next day somewhere else and when I do find it maybe I'll have to wait an hour or so for some other team to get to it." And this is the case with numerous other teams which are coming in here daily with freight. The same thing holds good with our local shippers.

There was a time when the facilities were all that were needed for the business but that time has gone. For several years past the business of Norway has been steadily increasing. There is only one way out of it, more track room must be provided.

People who are employed in our mills and shops have got to have a chance to live. With the steady growth of business more people are being employed and a large part of them want to bring their families here. Rents are scarce. Something should be done to provide more.

Board of Trade Meeting.

A meeting of the board of trade was held at Engine House hall, Tuesday evening. In the absence of the president, William C. Leavitt, it was voted that Charles S. Akers preside over the meeting.

It was voted that the committee on railroads and telegraphs confer with the Grand Trunk and secure half fares into Norway, Christmas week. It was also voted that this committee confer with officials of the Grand Trunk in regard to terminal facilities at the station as on account of the large increase of business here there is not enough track room to accommodate the people.

G. L. Curtis and H. A. Smith were appointed a special committee to see what can be done towards forming a building association or company to erect houses for rent.

At the December meeting, which is the annual meeting of the board, light refreshments will be served and it is hoped that a large number of members will attend for there is a large amount of business which should be attended to and every member should take an active interest in these matters.

A Plea for a Gymnasium.

During late years the high school has made great progress. This is shown in many ways. The interest shown in the school work; the fact that the school has been played on the approved list of college preparatory schools, which entitles the scholars to admission into Bowdoin, U. of M. and many other colleges without taking entrance examinations, and the increase in attendance, especially the increased number of out of town scholars. The number of non-resident scholars would be increased greatly if a gymnasium was annexed to the school. Music and drawing have been added recently to the graded school studies. This is a good thing and shows what can be done.

A gymnasium would increase the interest in the high school more than any other thing. It would work some of the animal life out of the boys and make them study harder. The old maxim, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," applies well here. The only athletics the school has are football in the fall and base ball in the spring. Many of the scholars cannot play football. Basket ball has been started this fall but when the deep snows come will have to be stopped since they have no place to play in. This leaves the longest part of the year with no athletics at all. Without a gymnasium a school is distinctly behind hand.

The most important question is cost. There is already enough land in back of the schoolhouse for a gymnasium. The building, which need be only a shell, would cost very near $500. If the town appropriated one-half of this, the other half could be raised by subscription, school entertainments, etc. Such things have been done and can be done again. The school is ready to work for it. Is the town willing to help? They should be for the school is an important part of the town and in her future citizens are turned out.

Walter Tubbs secured his second deer the last week. While not as large as the first it was a good sized four point.

Rev. J. W. Chesbro, pastor of the Baptist church at South Paris, will speak at G. A. R. hall this Sunday afternoon at 2:30.

Mrs. S. Harriman, Mr. and Mrs. Porter Swift, Mr. and Mrs. John Swain, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cummings, Francis Swain and Mrs. Esther Nickerson attended the football game at Lewiston, Saturday.

The repairs at the Methodist church are getting along well. The platform has been enlarged about three feet in front and everything is nearly ready for the new pipe organ, which it is expected will arrive in about two weeks.

William Bolton, the landscape gardener, will sail for Europe next week, not having visited home for several years. He will travel in England and Ireland and will leave to return home, April 4th, so as to be here to continue to do his usual work. His employers will be pleased to see him back as they have found him to be a faithful servant.

Snowballing has claimed the attention of the boys and girls this week and there have been some battles royal. "I don't know what I shall do if this snowballing season continues," said one boy, "my arms are so lame and sore I can hardly lift them." About a minute later we saw him making up a good big solid snowball.

Here's another joke by those jolly stage drivers. Frank Eastman and Alphonso Charles were at the freight house the other day just ready to lug a quarter of beef across to the station platform ready to load, when a gentleman came along and Mr. Charles says "I'll bet the cigars you can't lug this quarter of beef across on to the platform and not lay it down." The gentleman was sure he could and at once shouldered the beef. Upon reaching the platform he asked them where they wanted it. "Well, I don't know where you are going to put it if you don't lay it down." The gentleman saw the joke at once and joined in the laugh.

Guy Carter, son of Geo. W. Carter, recently shot a bear near their camp up Lary river valley. It was a good-sized one and it's only fair for Guy to say that it got into a trap which had been previously set.

The ladies' circle of the Universalist church will serve a supper at Concert Hall, Tuesday, Nov. 20th, for the benefit of the Epworth League. It will be an entertaining evening consisting of a farcical play, "The Telephone," by South Paris talent, also the "Autumn Leaf Drift" by six young ladies of South Paris drilled and managed by Iva McDuffie, solo by Mrs. Frank Kimball, and Mrs. Cowan and Miss Noble.

L. S. Bliss is in town and with Chas. C. H. is being introduced to horse breeders in this vicinity. Mr. Bliss is a brother of Prof. O. D. Bliss of Bliss college, Lewiston, and it was through him that the imported French coach and Percheron stallions were sold to a syndicate of Farmington also at Skowhegan.

Mr. Bliss is to sell a stallion on the same plan in this vicinity. The stallion is sold for McLaughlin Bros., importers, of Columbus, Ohio, who guarantee each sale made.

Karl Lester Tower was organist at the Chestnut Street Methodist church, Portland, last Sunday. This is one of the largest organs in the city. The critics of Portland speak of his playing in the highest terms. He is to play there again next Sunday. Mr. Tower opened his studio at Room 214, Baxter Block, Portland, Nov. 19th, when he teaches piano and organ. He is in Norway every Monday to teach. He already has quite a number of pupils here and we think it quite an opportunity to obtain the up-to-date methods of teaching, as Mr. Tower is ranked with the New England Conservatory of Music.

On Thursday, Nov. 22d, the ladies of the Methodist church will have a sale at G. A. R. hall. There will be aprons and other useful articles, besides fancy and ornamental ones. Here will also be a food and vegetable table, and the candy table will not be forgotten on which all kinds of candies will be displayed. There will be plenty of ice cream. The Juniors of the Epworth League are also to have something very pretty. Come and see these various articles, and thus help yourselves to things you need and at the same time help the workers to swell their fund for the new organ in the church.

N. H. S. Senior Class Entertainment.

The senior class of Norway high school will give a supper and entertainment at Concert Hall this Friday evening. The entertainment will be followed by a sociable.

The supper will be served at 6:30 o'clock. The program for the entertainment:

Piano duet, Earle Thibodeau, Genevieve Barker Solo, Miss Tower
Violin solo, Miss Blackwood
Reading, Miss Abbott
Solo, Mrs. Cowan
Piano duet, Earle Thibodeau, Genevieve Barker

Thanksgiving Service.

Union Thanksgiving services will be held Wednesday evening, Nov. 22nd, at the Baptist church at 7:30 o'clock. All the churches and all the people are invited to attend this service. It was thought best to put the service on Wednesday evening so that everybody could attend.

Christmas and New Year's Holidays.

"It is understood that the Grand Trunk Railway System will introduce for the approaching holidays a pleasing innovation in the way of excursion fares, for the public will be able prior to and during the Christmas and New Year's holidays to visit their friends on a liberal basis of reduced fares that are likely to be much appreciated."

Mrs. Knight is visiting relatives in Otisfield.

Mrs. A. A. Rolfe has been ill with a bad cold.

Charles Henry McIntire from Reading, Mass., has been visiting at J. B. B. G. and L. E. McIntire's. He called on Mrs. A. A. Rolfe, Wednesday.

SOUTH PARIS.

Banquet of the Men's Class.

The banquet of the Baldwin Men's Class held, Thursday evening, at the Congregational vestry was well attended and much enjoyed. The committee of arrangements, Joseph Myshall, chairman, had invited about fifty guests and appointed the president, Alton C. Wheeler, as toastmaster. Good cheer was in evidence everywhere and after the bountiful dinner which was provided by the banquet committee, Rev. A. K. Baldwin, chairman, speech-making was in order. Several toasts on subjects pertaining to the class were given and then remarks of a general nature, all of which were very pleasing in tone.

There was a slight mix-up in last week's ADVERTISER. The names of the hosts in the Baldwin Men's class were printed by mistake in the Klammetters Klub. We apologize to both class and club and every one else concerned. A piece of copy got in the wrong place.

Walter Blake was in Lewiston, Tuesday.

E. W. Knight was at home from Auburn last week.

Frank Perkins has purchased the Laura Whitman place at South Paris. Harlan Denison is visiting his grandparents at West Bethel.

O. E. Curtis of Kennebunk visited relatives here last week.

Modern American Boy.

Equals and Some Think Exceeds the Boys of Early Days.

It seems to us that the quality of the boy now growing up is peculiarly fine.
He is not only less obstreperous and egotistical, but clearer and cleaner minded than the lad of 20 years ago. His advance physically will be manifest to any one who will compare the figures in a class photograph of today with those of yesterday. He is taller, straighter, better featured, finer haired, handsomer and more like a thoroughbred in every way. The exercise to which much of this improvement is attributable may be no more zealous, but it seems to be less sporadic, more consistent and better adapted to its true purpose. As an inevitable sequence his habits have become more regular, improving in turn his manners. Altogether, he has become attractive, partially in what he might be called a girlish sense, as the effect of his greater delicacy, but chiefly in a purely masculine way, since in point of reality he was never so manly or so scrupulous of his personal honor. His mother is the one chiefly responsible for this happy evolution. Thirty years ago, her prototype donned a cap and became frankly middle-aged at marriage. From that day the principal feature of her personal appearance, her figure, ceased to interest her especially, and at 40, she was satisfactory to a degree as a mother but utterly worthless as a comrade and a helper. Today, at 45, she is her daughter's equal in appearance, and usually, we believe, her superior in the possession of that mysterious, indefinable, yet peculiarly fascinating quality known as "charm." She has not only maintained, but enhanced her attractiveness by growing with, as well as for, her children. It is this daily association from babyhood with her to whom instinct accords earliest reverence that has refined the boy. The father may have been no less congenial as a comrade, but circumstances have minimized in a comparative sense, his helpfulness as a friend.
Himself the product of a generation less carefully trained, and possessing the self-satisfaction of personal success, he is unable to perceive the desirability of a change in method to broaden development. Hence his patronizing attitude, his disposition to treat as a child the son rapidly approaching manhood. It is the mother, persisting in being a girl, who is glad to be regarded and treated by the boy as an intellectual equal. To her, therefore, belongs the credit of a transformation which we believe to be clearly perceptible, and which codes the greatest good to this vast American organism which soon will require the greatest mental and moral fibre yet demanded by civilization.

Half Naked Babies.

A Plea for Reform in Children's Dress.

A protest against the half naked condition that some poor children, chiefly of the upper classes, present is entered by Dr. Howard Barrett of London.
Their bare shoulders, legs and arms, and exposed chests may be very gratifying to the vanity of parents, he says, but are most dangerous to the little folks themselves. He lays much stress on the importance of keeping children and infants warm. Infants cannot, as a rule, be too tenderly cared for as regards protection from cold, he says, while the continuance of life in children prematurely born seems to depend more on their being kept thoroughly warm than upon any other circumstance.

A singular belief is prevalent among many, it seems, that on account of the activity of their circulation children can bear cold without hurt. "Few notions could be more mistaken or dangerous," says Dr. Barrett. "In all warm blooded animals the power of generating heat is feeblest at birth, very gradually increasing up to adult life, and declining again toward old age. It is in times of hard frost and during periods of long continued cold that we find the bills of mortality full of the deaths of old people and young children. Therefore I believe it to be difficult to keep a very young baby too warm. Let a mother, when her infant's crying can neither be appeased nor understood, first ascertain that he is not crying simply because he is cold, as babies often do, before she pronounces his malady to be 'wind' or some other mysterious complaint."

Children also lose heat rapidly, partly because the circulation being rapid more blood is carried in a given time to the surface and more heat is radiated than is the case with the adult. Their clothing is therefore a matter of importance.
But warm clothing, Dr. Barrett is careful to explain, does not mean complicated garments. "The 'endless' garments that encase modern babies" he considers to be both "unmeaning and uncalled for. The number of articles that can be applied to the body and limbs of an infant, or their richness and costly elaboration are no valuable test," he declares,
"of a mother's affection, though they may be of her wealth or love of display.
A simple regard for the comfort and well being of her offspring is the surest proof of maternal love." From personal experience of the manner in which infants and little children are clad in "successive layers of garments of complicated make and adjustment," Dr. Barrett is convinced that the situation is ripe for reform, could any one of influence be found bold enough to take the initiative.

Clothes that require such frequent changing and washing, he continues, should be few, warm and comparatively inexpensive and simple. A child should always wear woolen clothing next the skin, except for two or three months after birth, when, owing to the extreme delicacy of the skin, it should be of soft linen. If flannel causes irritation, silk woven in the same manner as silk stoles, ings but with a thicker texture is the best substitute. Indeed, as a material for underclothing, silk thus woven is not used as much as it deserves to be. But whether silk or flannel is used the vest should be made high; it is important that the upper part of the chest should be as fully protected as the lower.

The garments of an infant should be at the same time comfortable and sufficiently loose. It appears to be the rule, rather than an exception, for fit to be altogether disregarded and we see the unfortunate little creatures packed in multifarious coverings that restrain the movements of their limbs, render them listless and miserable, and reduce them to a condition little superior to the maitlot or papoose, which the traveler views with such sincere compassion. Let the mother remember the irritation and discomfort produced in her own case by ill arranged and misfitting clothes, and also that her baby can never explain to her the misery it may be suffering from,
and she will be careful not to err in this respect.

When the infant arrives at childhood,
Dr. Barrett recommends a middle course between two prejudicial extremes, the one being the process of so-called "hardening," the other what is commonly termed "coddling." Those who survive the "hardening," he says, do it in spite of the treatment, not because of it, while of the two extremes that of over-tenderness is the less dangerous.

Another session of the Maine legislature is approaching, and the commissioners are beginning to worry openly about the continuation of the enormous slaughter of deer and moose. A year ago they didn't worry any, because it would be a year before the State lawmakers could get together. Yet the most reliable reports place the supply of both deer and moose as fully as great as in any year known, since the protection of game created an interest in its numbers, and since the prevalence of sportsmen in the woods in close season gave opportunity to get reports of the presence of big game animals in various parts of the game belt.

Selecting a Flock of Sheep.

Some Important Points That Should Not Be Lost Sight Of.

Getting together a profitable flock of sheep is not such a simple matter as it may appear at first glance. Probably no sheep is entirely free from faults, nor are there any but possess some good quality.

If the buyer of a flock of sheep depends entirely on his eye for judging the points of the sheep he will be more easily deceived in them than in any other class of stock, because, by a process of trimming it is possible to hide their faults and make sheep appear to be quite different from what they really are. To select sheep successfully to make up a good flock, the buyer must have eyes in his fingers; rather, he must be able to judge of deficiencies by touch as well as by sight. A sheep in its natural condition may show a rough place and other faults of form, but after trimming by an experienced hand it will appear smooth and straight with an outline nearly perfect.

When using the hand to examine a sheep keep it open; as by passing it over the animal in this way the straightness or otherwise of the lines will be discovered with the least possible disturbance of the wool. In making a critical examination of a sheep start with the head, observing the number and condition of the teeth by pressing down the lower lip with the finger; examine the covering of the head, eyes and ears, looking for any appearance of horn where these should be absent. From the head pass the hand and over the neck to the shoulder, discovering in this way whether or not the neck is lacking in power, whether proportions of length and thickness, whether falling off or swelling to meet the shoulder, as it should in good mutton forms.
Next pass one hand down to the brisket and over the chest keeping the other on the shoulder, thus getting a correct idea of the depth of the animal. In the same manner get the depth of girth and spring of barrel. Passing the hand open from neck to lungs with a gentle shaking motion, determine the fleshiness of these parts with the age with the straightness of the back; with both hands get the width of the loin and hip and now, covered, proceeding to the leg for development of thigh and hind quarters.

Accordingly as the sheep is developed on those parts most valued from the butcher's point of view, so will be the value of the sheep from the mutton rais-er's standard. The length, texture and weight of fleece will be the basis of estimate from the standard of wool production.

For defects in the form of a sheep look for a shoulder where the blade feels sharp and not well covered with flesh, ribs wanting in spring and a backbone coming up in a ridge or hind quarters that slope toward the tail and shrink along the thigh. For a good fat sheep the leg should not only be fat and muscular on the outside, but in the twist the leg should be fleshy well down to the hock, and the animal should stand well and squarely on its legs.

Having examined the sheep for form,
its quality is next to be considered.
Examine the bone for strength and cleanness, also the texture of the hair on the face and legs, which is an important index to the sheep's value either in breeding or fattening flock. Taking finally the value of sheep for wool production, the chief points for criticism are quality, quantity and condition.
The way to judge a fleece and arrive at a fair estimate of its value is to start at the shoulder, where the best wool grows.
Using again the open hand, part the wool evenly, examining its length and texture, also the condition and healthfulness of the skin. From the shoulder pass to the thigh, where the poorest wool is; thence along the belly, and with such an examination a fair estimate of the value of the fleece will be made.

Where the selector of a flock of sheep confines himself to pure breeds, then breed characteristics demand careful attention. We have in sheep, as in other animals, certain strongly marked characteristics, which form a type, just as in horses we have horses for speed and horses for draft, cattle for beef and for dairy, these types being all formed by careful selection and development of those functions peculiar to each. Again, surroundings have had much to do with the work of selection, and this is especially so with sheep. The suitability of sheep for different altitudes has divided them into lowland, upland, down and mountain breeds. The large, square, strong frame and heavy production of wool and mutton are the characteristics of the lowland sheep, while the down breeds are smaller, with a better quality of flesh and fleece. The mountain breeds are of a type possessing more vigor of constitution, strong muscular limbs, of a more active disposition and ability to gather a subsistence under rugged conditions. A part of breed type as judged from a scale of points, the ram to head the flock should show the masculine traits strongly. The face should be brown and short, the body sinking well between the forelegs, deep and large ribs with brisket full and wide. In the ewe look for the same type as in the dairy cow. The ewe that milk well are the ones that raise the early maturing lambs.

the American girl talks through her nose, but the girls can retaliate by suggesting that the American man as a rule talks through his hat, especially in most of his conversation with the girls.

Waterford Creamery Patrons' Meeting.

Following a custom conceived, inaugurated and practised by Mr. Hamlin, manager of the Waterford creamery, a meeting of the patrons of this creamery was held in this place on Wednesday last week, which was very largely attended and will doubtless prove to be what it is intended by the projector that all these meetings shall be: i. e. of mutual benefit to the patron and management. The excellence of the product of our creamery makes it possible to win numerous prizes when entered in competition with other makes, and Mr. Hamlin deems it a judicious expenditure to defray the expenses of these meetings with the money thus earned.

At the meeting, the staff of the staff at Maine Experiment Station, Orono, Prof. Thompson, State Dairy Instructor, and B. Walker McKee of Fryburg, Ex-Com. of Agriculture in this State, each of whom is considered authority in the dairy branch of agriculture. Mr. Hamlin has announced the fact that Waterford creamery had no desire to reflect the light of other creameries, but on the contrary its ambition was to be the luminary itself. The creamery is in a position to command the best trade it has ever enjoyed. And yet not a few years since, a very valuable trophy and an enviable reputation as a butter maker was won at a National convention of butter makers held at St. Paul, and when the product manufactured under his personal supervision is entered in competition at State and County fairs it invariably secured the highest honors. Is it any wonder that the demand far exceeds the supply?

The writer had an opportunity to scan scores of letters from different sections of the country, received by Mr. Hamlin, recently, all clamoring for Waterford creamery butter, and it has been a source of considerable anxiety to him, and more or less work of a diplomatic nature has been performed by him in order to scale down the shipments to best customers in just the right proportion, and still retain the trade. It is a recognized fact that for a certain season of the year the sweet cream trade offers advantages not enjoyed by this creamery, but aside from this fact it is in a position to defy competition. By a system which approaches perfection, mathematical accuracy is secured, the patrons in the handling of their cream from the time the collector takes it from the tank.

The rules adopted by the patrons being so manifestly in the interest of all who wish to secure the very best butter it is possible to produce made at this creamery, are conscientiously adhered to by a very large majority. That one particularly which authorizes the discounting of 3c per pound of butter fact for defective cream, formulated and adopted by the Maine Creamery-Men's Association and incorporated into the code of our creamery is so clearly demonstrated to be in the interest of the careful and painstaking producer as against the careless and slovenly, the sentiment was unanimously in favor of its right enforcement by the management, all being desirous to deny it to the former class. Such cream if found may be retained by the patron rather than submit to the discount if he so desires, and if cream is found by the collector to be in such condition from any cause, that in his judgment the discount will not cover the defect, he may refuse to accept it.

By no means the least of attractions presented at this meeting was the most excellent dinner which was prepared under the personal direction of Mrs. W. K. Hamlin, with a corps of able assistants, and furnished entirely free to all guests, notwithstanding the fact that the crowd was almost a record-breaker there was an abundance of food, and what remained after all had been fed to the limit would have been sufficient to give them each a square meal. It would require only a slight lapse of memory to pronounce this the best dinner yet, but where all meals furnished on these and similar occasions are so universally good, it is very hard to discriminate. Suffice it to say that much credit is due Mrs. Hamlin and her assistants for the very efficient manner in which their part of the entertainment was carried out.

Reading by Alice Hamlin and music by Messrs. Packard and Noble and Jennie B. Hamlin was much enjoyed by all. It was altogether a very enjoyable, and we hope, profitable meeting to all who were fortunate to be present.

Ed. Herriek and Will Bryant each brought in a deer last Monday, and Billy Kendall and party came in with two more. Many other hunters went out, returning with no deer.

Measles are subsiding though some later cases are yet severe.

A letter from Charles W. Willey informs his friends that he is located for the winter in Sawtelle, California. His son, Guy, who went away with his father, is stopping in Billings, Montana, where he has work in a mattress and upholster's establishment.

E. E. Grover is out again after a week's confinement in doors.
F. L. Edwards and wife were in Berlin over Sunday.

C. E. Tolman of South Paris was in Bethel, Monday.

Ed. Herriek recently shot a fine deer with ten points.

Leslie Mason of Portland was in this village, Tuesday.

George Chapman of South Paris was in town last week.

Dr. I. H. Wight and family spent Sunday at Milan, N. H.

Charles Valentine is confined to the house with the measles.

John Nelson has returned to Bethel after a two weeks' vacation.

Martha B. Dingley of Portland is with her sister, Mrs. E. C. Bowler.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Hastings were in Montreal, Quebec, last week.

Charles Stearns went to Mechanic Falls, Friday, to visit his daughter.

Mrs. Flora Bennett and Grace Chapman of Portland were in Bethel last week.

Vivian Dingley is home from her school in Gilead to spend a week with her sister.

A. J. Haskell and family of West Bethel have moved into a house on Church street.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Young has been seriously ill with measles the past week.

Ellen Penley of Massachusetts, who was called to Bethel by the illness and death of her brother, returned to her home on Saturday.

Clifford Potter visited friends in town over Sunday, while en route from Kezar Falls to Derby, Vt., where his father, Rev. C. F. Potter, has taken a charge.

Grover Hill.

Isaiah and Arthur Coburn were here, Tuesday, after two loads of apples for El Stearns.

A. B. Grover has reshingled his buildings.

Mrs. Freeland Bennett is away visiting with relatives this week.

Marion E. Tyler shot a deer in Mason last Saturday.

George Spencey visited at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Spencey, last Sunday.

Mrs. Dora V. Whitman, who has returned from Kansas, visited at the home of her brother, Albert L. Whitman, the first of the week.

Freeland Bennett recently sold to Hector Oheeson the faithful old horse "Tib," which he raised and has kept for so many years.

Rachel Mayberry has been making quite a lot of improvements about her buildings this fall.

Mrs. Mary Paine sewed for Mrs. Edith Grover last week.

Rev. I. A. Paine has been doing quite a lot of carpenter work for R. R. Mayberry this season.

Middle Intervale.

Mattie Stevens of Livermore Falls is with her brothers and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Carey Stevens.

C. L. Sanborn has made extensive repairs on his buildings.

Our R. F. D. deliverer has been sick with measles. Mr. Oshman substituted for him, also Mr. Plaisted.

This winter weather makes our soldier friend, Dennis Casey, think of his home in Tugus. We were glad of the good war record of H. L. Farrington.

Mrs. Abbie Burton after visiting relatives here has returned to her home in Corinna.

BRYANT'S FOND.

A Good Record

Dell Cole, our mail carrier on Route No. 1, is enjoying his first vacation in four and one-half years' service for the government. In fact he has lost only one day in that period and then he was called to court as a witness for the town. Is not this a good record? Furthermore he has the name of being a faithful and obliging official among the patrons of his route.

Summer Sessions has been quite ill the past few days.

George W. Ridlon of West Paris was in town, Monday.

Hathaway and Bessey are papering the Baptist church.

Mark Titus has been promoted to day operator at Denning and will take the position, Nov. 15.

Freeman Morse, Guy Cole, Robert Rempt and H. D. Cole left, Monday, for a deer hunt on East B Hill.

Mrs. Emily J. Felt was called to Freepport, Saturday, by the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. Dorcas Bryant.

Lizzie Stevens is at home from Massachusetts. She expects to take charge of her school again in Newtow the first of January.

Four deer have been killed the past week in this vicinity, one each by James Berrymont, Daniel Bryant, Dana Dudley and Walter Arkett.

No action was taken on the road matter at the town meeting, Saturday. The question will probably come before the next March meeting.

D. E. Hayes, formerly agent at this station, has secured a position as station agent on the Passamaquoddy, and will leave for that place about December first.

LOCKE'S MILLS.

W. J. Wheeler of South Paris was in town last Thursday.

C. R. Bartlett made a business trip to Auburn last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Frost spent Sunday at his home in Lisbon.

Mabel Ricker of West Paris was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Penley, Saturday and Sunday.

Katie Haines, who has been working for Mrs. Dora Penley for the past two weeks, returned to her home in East Bethel, Saturday.

The hunters took advantage of the first snow, Saturday, for deer tracking. Will Goodwin and Will Bean brought in one dressing 130 pounds. E. R. Cummings was also successful and brought in a smaller one.

DENMARK.

Roy Freeman shot a deer one day last week.

The apple packers are getting through packing apples for this season.

Nellie Berry returned home from her visit to her sister's in Portland, Monday.

Mrs. Etta Wingate of Lynn, Mass., is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Frank Whales.

Mrs. Amy Richardson has moved to Fryeburg to her nephew's, John Richardson's.

Walter Blake returned home, Sunday, from her visit to her sister, Mrs. W. W. Berry.

About a foot of heavy snow fell, Sunday night. Some were out with sleighs. Monday. The trees were loaded heavily with snow.

NORWAY AND VICINITY.

Carrie Annis has finished work at Mrs. R. L. Powers.
Oscar I. Pitts got a good sized deer at Bethel last week.
E. C. Libby has had a telephone put in at his residence, number 9-21.
Mrs. Thomas Smiley of Portland is much improved from her recent illness.
Clara Daggett will spend Thanksgiving with Lucy Hayes at North Berwick.
S. B. Rawson called on his daughter, Mrs. W. A. Chubb, one day recently.
Evelyn Hazen is teaching in Errol, N. H. Her school is about five weeks longer this term.
The ADVERTISER office has this week a good sized bouquet of pansies, picked from under the snow.
Freeland Howe and Charles A. Frost of Norway have been appointed justices of the peace and quorum.
Raymond H. Eastman and his mother, Mrs. Olive M. Eastman, also Leah Barnes, all of Keamsburg, N. H., recently visited at J. Waldo Nash's.
Rev. S. G. Davis left the first of the week for Seffer, Fla., where he has an orange grove. Rev. H. H. Hoyt of Harrison will preach at the church on Sunday, the 18th.

A fair crowd gathered at the Opera House, Thursday evening, to see Shepard's moving pictures. The company presents a good series of pictures and illustrated songs.
Freeland Howe, Jr., is getting along well on his new house on Pleasant street. He has the furnace in and the rooms are ready for plastering. It is hoped that the house will be ready to move into by Christmas.
Frank D. Kemp of Springfield, Mass., has been elected representative in the fifth district, Hampden Co., Mrs. Kemp was a Norway girl, and Mr. and Mrs. Kemp frequently spend their summer vacation at the Beal's Hotel.

We were in error when we said that W. E. Douglass of Waterford was on the court commission to settle the boundary dispute between Norway and Waterford. It was William Douglass of that town, who was formerly sheriff of Oxford county, and not W. E. Douglass, who lives in the north part of the town.
Where is Red men's hall, Depot street? That was the subject of conversation among the bystanders who were reading the notices at the post-office window. The cause of the conversation was a large poster advertising a Thanksgiving ball. There is no Red men's hall on Depot street in Norway. Some suggested that it was at Mechanic Falls, others Bridgton. Where it is no one knows for there is no town given on the poster. Who can solve the mystery?
Rev. E. S. Cotton delivered an interesting address at the Baptist church, Sunday evening. The subject was "Adding Something for Nothing," it being one of the series of addresses, which he has been giving of sums in addition. The last of the series will be given next Sunday evening. It was just five years last Sunday since Mr. Cotton became pastor of the church here. Since coming here Mr. Cotton has made many friends both in and out of the church, and has been very successful in his church work.

TORTURED DAY AND NIGHT

Rheumatism Crazes the Mind.

An Internal Blood Treatment called Urto-O is Widely Recommended to Cure It.
Every sufferer from Rheumatism who wants to be rid of the sleepless nights, the nerve-racking, maddening hours of pain, should get at once a bottle of Urto-O, the marvelous specific for the cure of Rheumatism. It matters little how long one has suffered from the trouble nor how intense the suffering. Urto-O will cure it. It cures by its direct action upon the blood. Druggists and Physicians everywhere recommend Urto-O because they know that at last there has been a remedy prepared which actually cures the trouble and cures it to stay cured. It has stood all kinds of tests and never been found wanting. Urto-O is a cure for Rheumatism only. Noyes' Drug Store is the agent for Urto-O in Norway and they would be glad to meet all sufferers from the disease and explain the action of Urto-O on all forms of Rheumatism. The Smith Drug Co., and will be glad to send any rheumatic a sample of this marvelous specific on request. They sometimes send a full sized bottle to people sending for samples.

Wedded Twenty-five Years.

Twenty-five years ago Friday, the 9th of November, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Woodman of the Beal's Hotel were united in marriage and started on the matrimonial journey. They concluded to keep this important anniversary milestone from their friends but could not quite let it pass unobserved so it was decided that a turkey supper be served to the regular guests of the house and a few invited friends at 6 o'clock. Some how most of the guests were ready to dine at six and before going into the dining-room fruit punch was served. The following was the menu:

Oxtail Broth
Sirloin of beef, brown sauce, Rib of beef, dish gravy; Roast Vermont turkey cranberry sauce; Roast veal, brown sauce; Roast pork, apple sauce; Roast lamb, mint sauce.
Salmon Salad; American cream puffs, glaze sauce.
Boiled or mashed potatoes, squash
Mince, pumpkin, apple pie
Canned ice cream
Assorted cake

Halford sauce, Worcester sauce, Solder's ketchup, Horseradish, Beet pickles, Cucumbers, Pickles, Mixed pickles, Canned corn, "High Life," Coffee, Cheese, Assorted Nuts, Apples, Raisins.
But Mr. and Mrs. Woodman did not do all the surprising, as secret as they tried to be. About noon some of the regular guests found out that this was a day of more than usual importance to their host and hostess and they did a little hustling on this account.
After dinner the diners waited around and chatted till Mr. and Mrs. Woodman chanced to go into the parlor, then all the guests walked in. Freeland Howe, in a neat little off-hand speech, presented Mr. and Mrs. Woodman with a silver service as slight souvenir of the day from the hotel's regular guests, also a lot of good will and wishes for Mr. and Mrs. Woodman's continued good health, prosperity and happiness.
They were indeed surprised but very gracefully accepted the present and the kind intention that prompted it. It was all such a hurried affair that there was not time to have the pieces suitably inscribed. This was done later thus forever dedicating this service to the twenty-fifth marriage anniversary of the Beal's hotel landlord and landlady.

"Doctor" Johnson of the Kickapoo. Many in Norway will remember the Maine white Indian man, Dr. John West Johnson, who was here with the Kickapoo Indians at one time.
Dr. Johnson is now in his 77th year and is making a fight for his life. For the past 15 months he has been living in the open air and as near to nature as civilized man can. The alleged purpose is to cure an affection of the lungs that he fears may develop into consumption. His camp is located three miles from Biddeford, on the Kennebec road. It is doorless and windowless, and in cold and warm weather alike the clear, pure air circulates without obstruction. His manner of living is ordered much after the Indian style. The doctor prepares his own meals and eats of rice, vegetables, cornmeal, and such things as he can find. That appears every day of belief when it is known that at 1 o'clock p. m. he had not finished the breakfast he had begun at 10 a. m., the day of which this is written. The camp presents somewhat the appearance of an arsenal. There is a display of rifles, revolvers, tomahawks, knives and other warlike implements. The idea that he has these weapons solely for defense is dissolved when one notes that he takes the same pride in them that characterizes his early companions, the red men.
He was taken from his parents in Hollis when a child at the age of 3 years by the Indians, and he was 26 years old before he knew he was not an Indian. Then he was taken by the Indians to Biddeford, where his father was living, and the family resemblance of the Johnson family and the white Indian and a scar on his forehead that he had received when a child with his parents led to its being known that he was the lost child.
He went to school at the Limerick Academy; enlisted in the 14th Maine and served under Gen. Butler and was twice wounded. After the war Johnson entered actively upon his career as a medicine man, clairvoyant and showman, traveling all over the country. He also acted at different times as government interpreter and secret service man. At one time he traveled as an advance agent for Rev. Thomas Sunrise, an eloquent Indian preacher.
When Johnson was 20 years old, he married the daughter of "Old Doctor" Wambuse, an Indian "Medicine Man" and suchon. He has been three times married. His first wife died many years ago. His second and the mother of his only living children was divorced from him. His third wife died two years ago. She was a gifted woman and wrote some very good poetry, mostly flavored with various phases of his own life. The "Lifting of the Veil" for a long time published anonymously, was from Mrs. Johnson's pen.

The annual Gentlemen's Night of the Norway Lake Woman's club was observed Thursday evening, Nov. 8th, at the home of the president, Mrs. C. A. Stephens. More than eighty people were present and enjoyed a delicious banquet spread for them in the dining room, after which a literary program of nine numbers was carried out to the satisfaction of all. W. A. Delano, Albert Towne, Thaddeus Roberts, Miss Gray, Alta Pottle, Mrs. Bessie Delano, Mrs. L. Perry and Amy Mills were among those generously contributing to our pleasures. All pronounced it one of the best of our assemblies.

The Ideal Family Laxative.
Is one that can be used by the entire family, young and old, weak and strong, without any danger of harmful effects. It should have properties which insure the same dose, always having the same effect, otherwise the quantity will have to be increased and finally lose its effect altogether. These properties can be found in that old family remedy, Brandreth's Pills, because its ingredients are of the purest herbal extracts, and every pill is kept for three years before being sold, which allows them to mellow. We do not believe there is a laxative on the market that is so carefully made.
Brandreth's Pills are the same fine laxative tonic, will your grandparents used. They have been in use for over a century and are sold in every drug and medicine store, either plain or sugar-coated.
Geraldine Farrar, an American singer, made her last appearance in the Royal Opera House, Sunday, Nov. 4th, before sailing for New York. She received an ovation, says a dispatch from Berlin.

Language of Mexico.

Literal Translation of Street Names Makes Funny English.
The language of Mexico is becoming more like that of the rest of the world. To be sure, one says to the chambermaid, "Will you grace do me the favor to bring me some hot water?" or "Will you grace carry this note to Mr. X?" It is still a fact that Senor Villaseor y Matamoras (Mr. Lord of the City and Slayer of Moors) lives perhaps on the Lord of the Moors' street. He takes a coach to the home of friend who lives on the Bridge of Roosters street.
The friend, Senor Salvador Mirabel (Mr. Saviour Look Beautiful) has just returned from a trip to Europe, and Mr. Lord of the City and Slayer of Moors has not seen him for several months. The greeting is warm and the two men embrace each other while exchanging kisses and patting each other on the back.
After the greeting is over their conversation is not with somewhat the following inquiries: "Is your mother your most excellent mother?" or "It delights me much to know that all goes well with the most worthy father of your Grace."
A beggar shambles along the street of the Lord of the City. He sees a well dressed man and decides to turn the corner from Waterfall street, and beggar doffs his hat and prepares to ask for a donation.
"May the Lord fill your heart with pity, caballero. An alms for the Lord's sake." He reaches in his pocket and gives the beggar a coin with the remark, "May you walk with God," while the beggar makes the consoling reply, "God will repay your Grace."

Two poons, who have just been paid off on Saturday night, go to the cantina of "Night of Delicious Dreams," the best of friends. They drink pulque and tequila until they arrive at the point of delicious dreams. They continue until the dreams become vicious dreams.
Under the influence of the vicious dreams the men cease to be friends and become mortal enemies. They draw their knives and one slays the other to death.
A spectator runs out on the Heart of Jesus street and turns the corner to Love of God street to call a policeman. The policeman seeks assistance from a comrade, who is also a policeman, and the two men go to the station house. The policeman who called for assistance is hustled off to a hospital on the sepulchres of Holy Sunday street, while his friend goes to jail on Sad Indian street.
The Mexicans have a wide field for their imagination in naming streets, so that no one but an experienced coachman has a speaking acquaintance with the streets of the city. A stranger just arrived reflects that it would be well to observe the names of the streets as he rides along on the street car. To his astonishment he encounters a new name "The street of the Holy Spirit," which began at 1 at each block, were continuous the entire length of the street. The people cling to the old name, and the new ones are ignored almost entirely except in government documents.
Now the government is making another effort to establish the re-naming of all the old names. It purposes to obliterate all the old names and in their place to put the new names. It is hoped that they will be gradually forgotten and another feature of old Mexico will have gone into the past.

Origin of the Postage Stamp.
Quite recently there has been more or less discussion as to the origin of the postage stamp.
Perhaps the most authentic story is that which comes from the Post-office Department in Washington.
It appears that about sixty-five years ago Rowland Hill was traveling through one of the northern districts of England, and for a time was sojourning at an inn where the postman came with a letter for a young daughter of the inn keeper. The young man turned the letter over and over in his hand, and after examining the envelope minutely, inquired the price of the postage, which was a shilling. She sighed sadly and returned the letter to the postman, saying that it was from her brother, but that she had no money.
Mr. Hill was an onlooker and was touched with pity. He paid the postage, and his action seemed to embarrass the girl. When the postman had gone she stated to Mr. Hill that some signs marked on the envelope induced her to hand it to him. She wanted to know, and as a fact, there was no writing enclosed. In explanation she said that she and her brother had contrived a code system of communicating as neither of them were able to pay post charges.
Mr. Hill thought of the results of a system which had made such fine results possible. Before another day he had planned a postal system upon the present basis.

STOW.
Johnnie Stevens is gaining slowly. Annie Kimball has gone to Portland to work this winter. Henry Johnson has been drawing his apples to Fryeburg. Wilson Emery is in poor health, hardly able to do his chores. James Smith of Hollis recently visited his sons, Mr. E. Clay. The ground was white with snow the 10th, but it soon disappeared. Mrs. Abbott visited her friend, Mrs. Lizzie Goodwin of Chatham Center, N. H., recently. Q. W. Stevens made a short visit to his son, Oldin and family in South Windham, recently. School has closed at Union Hill after a very interesting term taught by Lillian Lord of West Paris. Rodney Charles and daughter of Pennsylvania visited his sister, Mrs. Hannah Eastman and family, recently. The young people at the Harbor gave Annie Kimball a surprise party before she left for Portland, which was enjoyed very much. Mrs. Eugene Stanley of Lovell, No. 4, visited at her brother's, A. C. Andrews' recently. Thelma returned home with her aunt. Mrs. Stanley also visited Mrs. Q. W. Stevens.

Dyspepsia of Women

Caused by Female Disorders and Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

A great many women suffer with a form of indigestion or dyspepsia which does not seem to yield to ordinary treatment. While the symptoms seem to be similar to those of ordinary indigestion, yet the medicines universally prescribed do not seem to restore the patient's normal condition.

Mrs. Pinkham claims that there is a kind of dyspepsia that is caused by a derangement of the female organism, and which, while it causes a disturbance similar to ordinary indigestion, cannot be relieved without a medicine which not only acts as a stomach tonic, but has a peculiar tonic effect on the female organism.
As proof of this theory we call attention to the case of Mrs. M. Wright, Brooklyn, N. Y., who was completely cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after everything else had failed. She writes:
"For two years I suffered with dyspepsia which so degenerated the entire system that I was unable to attend to my daily duties. I felt weak and nervous, and nothing that I ate tasted good and it caused a disturbance in my stomach. I tried different dyspepsia cures, but nothing seemed to help me. I was advised to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, and was happily surprised to find that it acted like a fine tonic, and in a few days I began to enjoy and properly digest my food. My recovery was complete in five weeks I was a well woman. I have recommended it to many suffering women."

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement or has such a record of cures of female troubles, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
The School Marm and Automobile
A little instance occurred in West Paris that for intrepidity and daring equals any ever observed in the Wild West Show and this, too, by a pretty country school marm with winning smiles, with a volubility of speech and hypnotic power that was well calculated to captivate the unwary. This pretty country school marm attended the recent Teachers' convention at Lewiston. While there, being of a sensitive turn of mind, she conceived the idea of getting an automobile.
After canvassing the cities of Auburn and Lewiston for an opportunity to procure an automobile, she finally found a dealer and started an obliging dealer, who must have been captivated by the winning smiles of the country school marm and sold her an automobile, as the dealer claims upon her representation of being the daughter of a wealthy lumberman and the promise of a check in payment for the auto on her return home. While the school marm was waiting for the auto, and afterward when she got the auto and after a very short time she got the instructions of the very obliging dealer as to the mechanism and the art of running an automobile, the venture marm, as report says, instead of attending the convention takes her auto and with her limited experience made a successful run to Portland and after taking in the sights of the city started on her return trip to her home in the adjoining town of West Paris.
Arriving at Paris her auto refused to go farther and the services of an expert were called to ascertain the cause and repair damages that were due to her ignorance in running an auto. Here the pretty school marm evidently prevailed upon or as it was getting late, accompanied her home. The dealer heard from him here he was vigorously ringing the door bell of a friend at 11 o'clock at night for admission and lodging. It is reported the young expert is exceedingly sensitive to any one alluding to his night's experience with the country school marm and his check.
For several days this lively young school marm delighted her friends with auto rides over the country back roads to the horror and disgust of our staid old farmers, who feared going out of their door-yard and into the risky horses, as that a rule were less frightened than themselves at the auto, lest they meet the school marm with her auto.
The dealer that had so recklessly disposed of his high priced auto to the smiling, hypnotic young school marm, not receiving the promised check, sent an agent to West Paris to investigate the cause. As the agent stepped from the train, he saw the dashing school marm and the auto on the main street, the lady just getting ready to start for her home. The agent was in season to capture the auto and telephoned the dealer with it that night. The last seen of the pretty and venturesome school marm she was walking up the railroad track, musing no doubt upon the delightful adventure with an auto.

A GUARANTEED CURE FOR PILES.
Itching, Blind, Bleeding, Protruding Piles. Druggists refund money if PAIN OINTMENT fails to cure in 6 to 14 days. 50c. 1-2-3-4

An enterprising society reporter on one of the metropolitan papers with an inclination for statistics has made the discovery that two-thirds of the 400 are mere ciphers.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; brings vigor and cheerfulness when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.
Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. Thus unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a Home of Swamp-Root pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonials received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

The post-office department at Washington proposes a new scheme for advertising the various cities of the United States, and are soon to issue new one and two-cent postage stamps, with the name of the city for which the stamps are intended printed across the face. Of course this will not be done to advertise the cities and towns, as the purpose is merely to assist the post-office authorities in their accounting department, but incidentally it will be an advertising scheme for the 3,900 localities in which the new idea will be introduced.

Divorce.

Many girls think and look forward to marriage as the day of happiness, something like their graduation day, when all of earthly troubles shall have past away and there shall be no more sorrow or annoyances that "he" cannot share and dispense. They expect the little attentions and open devotions of courtship will continue, and the "he" will be able and delighted to gratify every whim expressed or unexpressed. Oftentimes the young wife expects and demands all this without making the least effort on her part to inspire a desire for one to perform those former courtship days' devotions or as much of them as is consistent with the sober every-day life of marriage.

The wife who is wise enough and progressive enough to accept the new order of life, to make herself as attractive and as entertaining on all subjects of interest as possible, to be kind and considerate to act well her part as a partner in the marriage firm and adapt herself to her husband's circumstances, will probably find in the end no need of a divorce court.

But if she whines and cries and fusses and demands a continuance of attentions that have ceased to be voluntary because her thoughtlessness has grieved and hurt the old love; if she puts forward an "I will get even" spirit, if her selfishness takes the place of thoughtfulness, and jealousy, hard thoughts and pride step in, if she does acts she knows to be wrong simply because her husband does similar acts the divorce court may follow. It is safe to say she will not be happy if she does these things and her husband and family cannot be happy with her.

Tact, talent and a Christ-like spirit in a woman will cover a whole multitude of sins even in a bad husband, and history tells us that women of this kind have the best of husbands. Whoever heard of a girl, (in her mind) marrying a bad husband. If that is so then it is well worth the while for the wife to make an unostentatious effort and study not to have him degenerate on her hands. If she has made a mistake and chosen so bad that the husband is thoroughly bad, a brave woman with true American grit should be loth to go back on her judgment that led her to take the man for a life companion, and if she should have to "go back on her judgment" she should never trust it again to the extent of taking another husband.

Lack of occupation and vanity are two great evils that have marred the happiness of many a woman. If wives have something useful and interesting to do, some work that is helpful to themselves, their families or their friends, they will find less time to get into mischief and bad ways. Perhaps it is thoughtless but often married ladies, especially if they are fair to look upon, dress themselves in becoming apparel, live to friends but to walk the streets, with apparently no reason but to be admired by the passing stranger, even to forming promiscuous acquaintances. Walking for the health is not bad, but to speak plainly "street walking for pick-ups" is bad business.

"No I am not going down there with those old hens," said a young married woman the other day. Now there is another trouble. Many women after they are married do not know they have joined the "old hens" class. They still think and act and want to be girls. They cannot adapt themselves to their new life gracefully. They are unhappy because they are not girls, no matter how unhappy they are they can never be girls again.

Some of them have long hard lessons to learn on just this simple subject, and some have wrecked their happiness on this obstacle. They insist on girlish ways and never make a study of womanliness and the girlish ways become unbecoming to everybody.

We noticed from our window a fine looking young man with two ladies, walking on the street. They were strangers, but it became apparent that the handsome, better dressed and more stylish was the young man's wife, and that was more apparent she did not like to share the husband's attention with the friend. The lady friend started off, evidently with the intention to take pictures as she had a camera. The husband started to go with her as he was talking with her at the time. Not so the wife. She walked right on, her head in air and disdain showing plainly in every step. Here was a problem. The husband did not know what to do. He called to the wife and then went and took her by the arm but she insisted on going her way, and the friend seeing how matters were, waited a few minutes then went off in another direction by herself. When the young couple had got the affair so they could look around the friend was a long way off. After a while they walked in the same direction as the friend, there was angry looks on both faces. They did not overtake the friend for they soon returned and then they walked the street together. They talked and laughed but still there was something that was not just right between them. The wife had lost self-control and self-respect. She had given way to a childish, selfish, jealous spirit. She had humiliated a loyal husband before a friend. She had hurt the feelings of the friend by showing suspicion. She had assented her husband's respect, and this may be the first step toward the divorce court.

Another wife may have come from a home of affluence and with full knowledge of the fact married a man not largely blessed with earthly goods, but who works and toils day after day to give her the best that he can, but she, not contented to take the position she has voluntarily chosen, is constantly asking for the luxuries the wearing apparel and the ways of living that she knows her husband can ill afford or is utterly unable to give her. Perhaps her mother joins with her against the husband and says "—has always had these things, we got them for her somehow and she must have them now." The nagging and fussing and complaining wears away the husband's patience and what is worse, shows him his wife, not as he had pictured her in his mind, as but little lower than the angels.

Perhaps the most fruitful wrong is running to father, mother, relatives and friends with every trouble for sympathy, instead of the husband and wife settling their own affairs themselves without outside help.

Alexander Muir of Toronto, author of "The Maple Leaf," Canada's national anthem, was interested all his life in the divorce laws, which were too often, he claimed, unfair to women. Mr. Muir frequently declared that men, not their wives, were in nine cases out of ten responsible for unhappy marriages. "The trouble with too many husbands," he said, "is that they treat their wives as a Toronto man used to do. This man, sitting in his drawing room on a coolish evening, cried out fiercely: "Shut that door, confound it! What is the matter with you anyway? Do you want to freeze me?"

"The cook appeared calmly in the open doorway. "Do you know who you are speaking to, sir?" she said in a stern voice. "Oh, excuse me! I thought it was my wife."

Indoor Pleasures.

Our Thanksgiving festival marks the extreme boundary line between outdoor and indoor enjoyment for thousands of people. Those who are in any measure handicapped by feeble health, the great contingent who are on the borderland of age, and the multitude of busy folk who work for their living, take their holidays before Thanksgiving, and settle down to the coziness of the fireside for the long winter evenings as November reaches its closing hours.

We hardly think about the winter evenings until Thanksgiving is over. Then the household becomes full of mysteries and delightful planning for the coming season; there are gifts to be made, many of them by the hands of women and children, there are sociables and receptions ahead, and in home and society alike the pressure of much that is exciting and interesting begins to be felt. After Thanksgiving Stevenson's couplet drifts naturally into the mind: "The world is so full of a number of things, I think we should all be as happy as kings."

Indeed the world is full and the little world of home brims to the overflow with a multitude of separate and individual pleasures that contribute to the common weal.

Among the indoor occupations that most awaken a sense of gratitude, some of us count eagerly the opportunities afforded by books, new and old. In the long evenings there is always the open door to good literature. We may read our favorite authors, those who have inspired and helped us in the past, or we may dip into new books at discretion. Mental culture and breadth are the portion of those who read with intention and intelligence. Read the current novels that drop from the press as the leaves from the trees, but read also those books which have endured the testing of time and defy its wear and tear. In a house where the habit of reading is established there will be no lack of sincere thankfulness to Him who made man's brain with its many chambers and subtle windings and facility to receive impressions.

Why Ernestine Does Not Take Music Lessons.

One day last spring while making my usual music lesson round, I met a little girl six years old with whom I became acquainted when giving her mother lessons. "Are you going to give Charlie a lesson?" "Yes," I replied. "Don't you think it too hard for such a little boy to take music lessons?" "He does not think it hard but quite enjoys it," I saw she was not convinced. The little boy in question was nine years old.

Some time after I met the little girl and her cousin five years old. I thought I would like to know if she still had the same horror of music lessons for little folks so I questioned, "I suppose Ernestine you and Milo will soon be taking lessons?" "Yes," she replied. "Don't you think it too hard for such a little boy to take music lessons?" "He does not think it hard but quite enjoys it," I saw she was not convinced. The little boy in question was nine years old.

She hesitated a moment, then looking as though what she replied could not be denied, she said "Last winter I had conjunctivitis of the kidneys and the doctor says I cannot take music lessons."
